Abhaydayanam

Aatmakalyanam

Here is a story of little girl Radhi who was extremely fond of western music and was always conscious about her looks.

She would spend a lot of time looking at the mirror and combing her hair.

The most amazing thing she had was her room of fantasy, where all her toys, dolls, cosmetics and toiletries could speak. Wouldn't that be a world you all would like to have?

One day when she had finished styling her hair, she asked her doll how she was looking and the doll replied to her that she was looking as pretty as her.

Just then Radhi's mother called out as they had to go to a party.

After Radhi had left, the comb and the mirror were relaxed and they vented out their frustration. Comb exclaimed, "Thank God, I got some freedom to breath from her thick entangled hair!"

Mirror sighed, "I get bored seeing Radhi's face all day".

RELAX!

A few hours later, when Radhi returned from the party, she was very upset. Seeing her frowning face the doll asked her what the matter was?

Here is the conversation that occurred between Radhi and her fantasy world after the party...

Radhi: Although I was looking the most beautiful at the party, no one paid attention to me.

Everyone's attention was drawn towards Kashvi. She is neither fair nor does she have long hair. Yet everyone kept appreciating her.

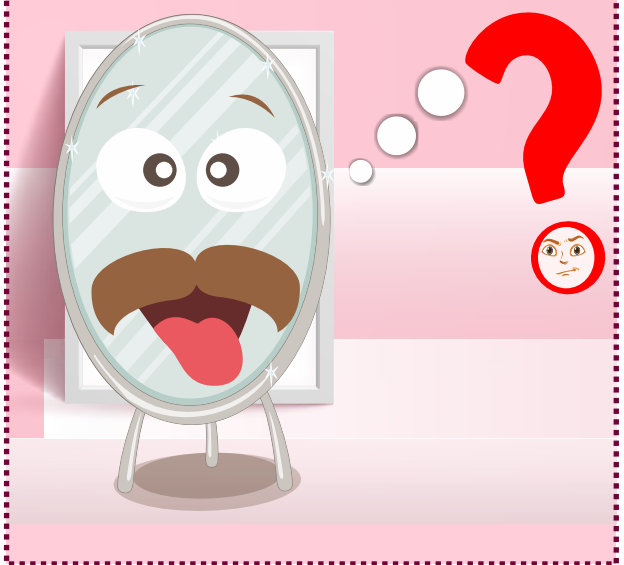

Doll: If she is not beautiful, then why was she getting all the appreciation?

Radhi: Kashvi was saying she was so busy giving seva for an event that she had no time to look into mirror.

Mirror: What are you saying Radhi! She had no time to look at me too!

Radhi: Kashvi is associated with a mission where she gives seva. She was talking about the recently concluded Shree Bhagwati Jain Diksha Mahotsav and the Diksharthis. She was the centre of attention at the party.

Doll: Wow! Diksha Mahotsav. It's a divine occasion! And those who accept the vows of Diksha are extraordinary souls. They are so beautiful internally, that their inner qualities out shadow our outer beauty. They don't even use a mirror or a comb after taking Diksha.

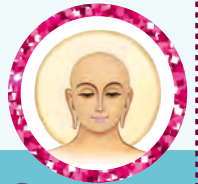

Comb: If everyone would be like them then I would not have to bear the pain of getting entangled into long hair.

Lipstick: It's strange, they will not even use me. When girls use me, I bring so much shine to their lips.

Doll: No, now they do not use any compact, lipstick or any other makeup. Their spirituality is so radiant that it brings a natural glow on their face, just like the glow on Parmatma's face.

Radhi: How is that possible? No use of any cosmetics for their whole life and yet they look so beautiful, glowing and peaceful!

Doll: Inner beauty is real beauty. Outer beauty fades with time and age. Inner qualities of calmness and compassion stay forever.

Doll: See Radhi, I am your best friend. I am the most beautiful doll in the world. Every girl wants to be like me. But my outer beauty is temporary. If I had inner beauty like the Nav Dikshits and the other Sadhu-Sadhviji, I would be happier.

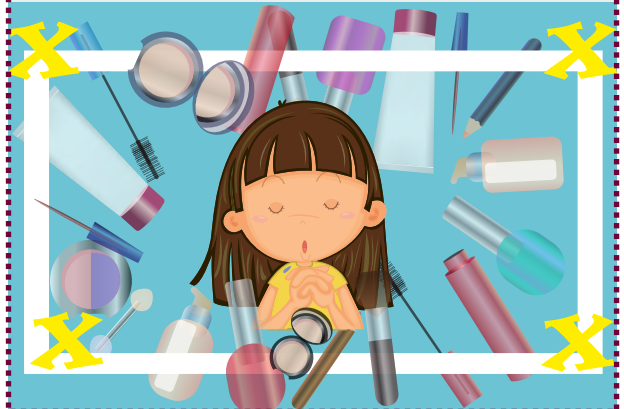

Imagine how I would look after 20 years, would you still like to play with me? I don't think so.

Radhi: Yes doll, you are absolutely right. When I become 80 years old, no mirror, comb or cosmetics will be able to make me look beautiful.

Even my outer beauty is temporary. From now on, I too will focus to enhance my inner qualities instead of looking into the mirror all the time.

On that day Radhi took a vow to make minimum use of comb, mirror and cosmetics.

She also took a vow that at least 4 days a month, for one year she will not make use of any combs, mirrors or cosmetics.

So my little friends what have you decided?

Many people around us believe that Diksha or renunciation is hard and not for everyone, it is only rituals. But today let us know the true meaning of DIKSHA. Diksha is a D-ivine connection with Parmatma himself which opens up the path of Self I-ntrospection and cultivate fine qualities with right knowledge and faith. This path which may also be called a K-arma breaker as it frees the soul from the continuous cycle of birth and death. A S-oul searching process to recognize one's real identity and sow the seeds of H-umility.

This path of renunciation gives A-bhaydaan that spares innumerable lives by giving up one's own comfort. This divine path of DIKSHA isn't for the weak but for ones with valour and bravery who adapt such a life and invite hardships. This path is an epitome of kindness towards all living beings.
